Night express network now covers the British Isles almost completely

TNT Innight expands service to UK and Ireland

Mannheim, 4 September 2006. Best of British: in order to keep up its tradition of living up to customer expectations, TNT Innight, market leader in night express deliveries, has expanded its services from 1st September 2006 onwards to include the British Isles. Deliveries before 8.00 am of the following morning can now be made to customers on either side of the channel to almost any point in the UK and Ireland.

Pepping up Britain's nightlife! Since 1st September 2006, TNT Innight has added two destinations in the UK and Ireland to its European network. Taking off from Frankfurt, TNT Innight now serves the airports Coventry and Dublin. Cargoes are distributed from these hubs to a number of sub-centres and then delivered to the customer during the night, arriving before 8.00 am the next morning. The service covers nearly all of England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland.

"The expansion of our services meets a huge demand by our customers", Jürgen Freud, General Manager for Business Management, points out. "Market surveys are a clear evidence of the trend. But of course the new destinations are open to all our branches."

TNT Innight's usual lead times apply for the British Isles as well: urgent deliveries are picked up in the early evening and delivered to customers almost anywhere in the UK and Ireland before 8.00 am of the following morning. Specific drop-off points can be arranged, and there are numerous other options regarding pick-up and delivery of goods so customer service can be tailored according to individual or branch-specific needs.

The maximum weight per package is 425 kilograms, maximum measure 3.50 metres. The goods are dispatched by well-known exclusive partners that are able to meet TNT's high standards. This way, TNT Innight can offer Saturday deliveries without any surcharge and a full weekend service from May to September. Of course, customers may also use additional services such as "track'n'trace" for the new destinations in the UK and Ireland.

TNT Innight is the leading distribution network for the transportation of spare parts and time-critical deliveries during the night to any desired location, offering country-wide services in Germany and 24 other countries. The TNT Innight network consists of over 1,200 employees based in 71 branches and delivers about 93,000 shipments per day.
